HOW TO USE THIS GUIDE

1. EXPLORE YOU

First, start by identifying your values, interests, and strengths to build a strong foundation for decision-making.

2. EXPLORE ACADEMICS

Second, dive into the majors that match your interests. Research majors, connect with advisors or faculty, and explore how your interests align with academic paths.

3. EXPLORE CAREERS

Third, connect your self-awareness and academic interests to the world of work. Use online tools, conduct informational interviews, and explore career options that match your goals and strengths.

GEAUX!

START HERE

Begin your exploration by taking the Focus 2 assessment. This tool helps you identify your interests, values, personality, and skills. It can suggest career paths and majors that align with who you are, giving you a solid starting point for making informed decisions about your future.

Complete all five sections prior to starting this guide.

Use the access code "tigers" and your LSU email address. Your results will be stored in the online Student Portfolio.

REFLECTION

Self-Reflection Exercise

Self reflection allows you to identify and organize ideas that can guide your major exploration process. Since exploration is unique to each individual, a helpful first step is to recognize the experiences, values, people, places, hobbies, and skills important to you. Look for ways these areas might relate to one another.

As you reflect, consider the following questions to deepen your understanding:

What majors of interest align with the subjects or topics you enjoy learning about most?

---

---

How do your personal interests influence your academic or career goals?

---

---

What skills and hobbies do you enjoy that could translate into a potential career path?

---

---

Which values are most important to you when thinking about your future work or lifestyle?

---

---

How does your personality shape the way you like to work, learn, or interact with others?

---

---

How do your personal interests, values, skills, and personality connect with the career paths typically associated with the majors you're considering? Are there any surprising connections or gaps you noticed during these activities?

RESEARCH MAJORS OF INTEREST

Individual Research

Take time to research each major you're considering.

Most academic programs have websites that outline key details, such as required courses, potential career paths, and opportunities for hands-on experience like internships or research projects. Be sure to check out the course catalog as well. Reviewing each major's offered courses will give you a clearer picture of what you'll be studying, how rigorous the program may be, and which subjects it emphasizes.

All of these factors can help you decide which major is the right fit for you. Use the questions on the following page to guide the comparison of your top three majors.

LSU Course Catalog

The LSU course catalog helps you explore majors by outlining required courses. It's a great tool to see if a major fits your interests and goals.

LSU Majors by Interest

The LSU Majors by Interest resource helps you explore programs based on your career interests. It's a useful tool to see which majors align with your goals and passions.

Talk to Academic Advisors and Faculty

Talk with academic advisors and faculty for your chosen majors. These on-campus experts can help you understand the specifics of the major, the skills you will learn, and how it fits into your long-term goals.

You can ask them about opportunities within the major including internships, research opportunities, or clubs that could help you learn more and gain hands-on experience.

"Remember: choosing a major is not about finding the perfect fit right away. It is about exploring and learning what excites you. Trust the process and know that your path will evolve as you discover more about your strengths and passions."

RESOURCES

Online Tools to Guide Your Search

From data-driven tools to video interviews and professional profiles, these resources help you take a closer look at your future options. Keep your Focus2 results in mind to take a deeper dive.

O*NET

O*NET is a free resource from the U.S. Department of Labor that offers detailed information on hundreds of careers. Explore job descriptions, required skills, workplace values, salary data, and employment trends to help narrow down your career options. Access it at onetonline.org.

Occupational Outlook Handbook (OOH)

The OOH can help you find career information on job duties, education, training, pay, and future outlook for hundreds of occupations. Access this resource at bls.gov/ooh/.

Candid Career

Gain access to career advice from industry professionals, and see it all on video! Candid Career features informational interviews to help you discover and explore your many career options. In addition, "how-to" videos on important job search topics such as resume writing and interviewing can help you prepare to land your next job. Access this resource at lsu.candidcareer.com.

LinkedIn

LinkedIn is a useful resource for researching potential career options. Get started:

- Go to the LSU LinkedIn page alumni tab to see where LSU alumni have gone on to work after college. You can filter by geographic location, company, and major!
- Use the search box to search for different companies and see what they post on their company LinkedIn page. From the company page, you'll also be able to see which alumni from LSU work for that organization.
- Join groups on LinkedIn to be connected to professionals within your field and the current conversations. The more groups you join, the more access you have to information.
- See someone with your dream job? Check out their profile to see their work history, educational credentials, and more. This helps you to make informed choices about how to pursue a similar career.

USING A.I. IN THE EXPLORATION PROCESS

Understanding A.I.

A.I. can help you explore career paths more efficiently by generating ideas, summarizing job information, and connecting your interests to potential fields, all in a personalized, easy-to-understand way. Use these tools to find information about job titles, skills, salaries, and trends.

Student: Act as a career coach. I'm pursuing a degree in sociology and am interested in making a difference in my community. What career paths should I consider?

Artificial Intelligence: With a sociology degree and interest in community service, here are top career paths to consider:

Nonprofit & Community Organizations – Work with local issues and grassroots change.

Social Services & Public Welfare – Hands-on and high impact support for the community.

Public Policy & Government – Drive change within the system.

Education & Outreach – Empower others through knowledge.

Advocacy & Justice Work – Promote support and healing through systemic reform.

Your next steps: explore these career paths further through research, conversations with professionals, and hands-on experiences that align with your values and goals.

SUGGESTED A.I. PROMPTS

- What organizations and activities are available and/or affiliated with this major?
- What competencies and skills will I gain in this major?
- What are some typical internships or experiences associated with this major?
- What kinds of careers do students in this major typically pursue?
- How does this major prepare students for graduate or professional school?

BE CAUTIOUS

A.I. tools can be helpful for exploring career ideas, but they are not always accurate or current. It is important to double-check the information you find, especially salary data, job outlook, and education requirements. Use trusted sources like the Occupational Outlook Handbook or talk to a career coach. Think of A.I. as a starting point, not your only resource.

INFORMATIONAL INTERVIEWS

What Is An Informational Interview?

An informational interview allows you to seek advice from people who are a few steps ahead of you. It is an opportunity to learn more about an industry you are interested in, speak with professionals in the field, and gain better insight into a company or organization from someone with firsthand experience, in-person or virtually.

Networking

Your network includes anyone who might offer insight, advice, or connections—friends, family, professors, supervisors, classmates, and more. Start by identifying who you already know, especially those in fields you're interested in. Then, think about who you could add to your network to expand your career exploration opportunities.

Setting Up Your Informational Interview

Reaching out for an informational interview is a great way to learn about a career path directly from someone in your network. A professional, polite email can help you make a strong first impression and open the door to valuable insights and advice.

New Message

Subject:

Hi "name of contact",

I hope you're doing well! My name is Mike Tiger and I'm in the process of exploring a career in XYZ. My career coach suggested that I reach out because you are an LSU alum working in the field of XYZ. I'd love to set up a conversation with you to learn more about the work you do, and the path you've taken after graduating from LSU. If you have suggestions of other professionals I can reach out to, I'd welcome the opportunity to add them to my network.

I appreciate your time and look forward to hearing from you soon.

Best,
Mike Tiger

Sample Informational Interviewing Questions

Although informational interviews are relaxed, it's important to focus on your goal and plan ahead of time to gather the information you're looking for. Research about the organization will make your questions more informed—and demonstrate your enthusiasm. Below are some sample areas to cover.

QUESTIONS ABOUT THE JOB

- What kinds of tasks do you do on a typical day or in a typical week?
- What do you like best about this job? What excites you most about this job?
- What are some of the more difficult or frustrating parts of this career?
- I really like doing _____. Do you have an opportunity to do that type of work in this career?
- What characteristics does a person in this job need to have?
- Do you usually work independently or as part of a team?
- What types of decisions do you make in this job?
- How does your work fit into the mission of the organization?
- What types of advancement opportunities are available for an entry-level worker in this career?

QUESTIONS ABOUT WORKING CONDITIONS

- What kind of hours do you work? Is your schedule flexible or set?
- Does this career include or require travel?
- Are there any health concerns associated with your career?

QUESTIONS ABOUT PREPARING FOR THIS CAREER

- How did you prepare for this career?
- What qualities should a person have to be in this field?
- Do you have any advice on how to prepare for this type of career?
- What type of entry-level job offers the most learning opportunities?
- Do you know anyone in this career who has my level of education or my type of experience?
- What suggestions do you have for someone entering your line of work?

QUESTIONS ABOUT OTHER CAREERS AND CONTACTS

- Do you know of any similar careers that also use _____ or involve _____?
- I know that people in this career specialize in _____ and _____. Do you know of any other specialties?
- Can you suggest anyone else I could ask for information? May I tell them that you have referred me?
